HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

George Washington will in all probability annex one of the best high school foot ball players next fall, as Spincer American Simplex of Technical is thinking seriously of entering the local university. That he would be able to hold his own is a concluded fact, as Spencer has had four years of experience under the excellent tutoring of Coach Hecox, and this alone should secure him a position on the Hatchetites' eleven. It is not known at this writing whether any other of the high school foot ball stars are considering taking up studies at this college, but it would not be at all surprising to see this team composed mostly of local high school graduates in the future, as it has been in the past.

Dewey, the diminutive sprinter of the Central track squad, is training faithfully and is bound to spring into the limelight on the cinder path again this winter. He was without a peer as a dash man in the high schools last season, but had very little opportunity to match his skill against the ability of some of the other sprinters, as high school competition was not very keen in track circles last year.

If the high schools hold interhigh track meets with one another for practice during the winter months, why not let Central participate? The O street school is the only local high school that is proficient on the track, and by lining up in competition with the other high schools the other four are bound to acquire more knowledge of the track game from their Blue and White neighbors. The organizing of a full-fledged spring meet for the many standpoints. It is an agreed fact that it would be better to hold these small meets with proper representation than a chance to show his form, so brilliant | could be lost by giving this proposition a

A much-discussed topic among the high school followers is why can't an interhigh basket ball league be formed and supported by the athletic association in the same manner as base ball and foot ball? In most every city where a full corps of high schools is established basket ball is as popular as the two other ond, Cline the third and Slosson the sports and interest in these matches is inense. The high schools of this city have the material, and indeed several of the Lozier first and Sutton got 4, the youngster high schools are interested in the sport came back in the second with 47 to Sut- but the game will never flourish until it ton's 0. Demarest registered 19 in the is put on the same basis as the other branches of athletics indulged in by the local schools. It could not prove a bit rougher than foot ball, and as participation on the track has not been very enthusiastic of late this game would prove a worthy substitute.

The Central track squad is out in force, and, judging from the number, it looks Maxwell as if the Centralites will again turn out a formidable aggregation. Most of the team is of inexperienced material, but Central always develops some of the best Mitchell novice runners in the high schools, owing excellent coaching or With a few more men at the head of the running game in the local high schools elever run of 51 subsided than the blond like Mr. Foley, the track training would haired youngster rattled off 117 in the soon be on the same basis that it boasted eighth, displaying some fast, clever bil- of a few years ago, when the spring meet was the most interesting competition of the school year.

The friends of Hildreth, the former Western and Technical High athlete, will be glad to learn that he is back in town for a short stay. He has been traveling with the geological survey. Hildreth was Overland one of the best outfielders that ever represented the boys across the creek on the diamond. His consistent batting easily won him a place on the all-high nine in Randolph has been elected manager of the Western High base ball nine and is planning an extensive schedule for the Red and White team this spring. Western has quite a few veteran ball players enrolled again this year, and prospects alike to him by weaving and driving the on the base ball field this season are very promising. The only drawback to work was masterly and he always had the captain for this season, to return to the team was the failure of Howard, the shiny balls under control. His school. He was catcher on the nine for forty-fifth shot was a billiard master- the past few seasons, and his position plece. The ends in the high school foot ball series just past were not up to the standard of the ends in former years. Most of the players guarding these positions were novices and this accounts for Reo their being below par this fall. Gill of Technical, who was brought into the series after Technical was forced less preliminaries, and, continuing his to employ substitutes, proved a sensation have one good end for next season. he participated in but few contests this fall, he was robbed of the opportunity to declare himself eligible for one of the all-high positions, but it is a safe bet he would have annexed one of these pos

tions had he been eligible for the all-high

Business is supporting a track team this winter and prospects along this line are better than they have ever been in the his tory of the school. An encouraging fact is that most of the team is composed of novices anxious to learn the running game and this alone speaks well for track par ticipation at Business in future years. Rathbone. Bridgett and Davis will form the nucleus of the team, and as these boys are all well acquainted with the running game, the outlook is very promis-

When the bell rings for base ball prac tice in the spring Central High surely will be well fortified with infielders. Aside from Thomas, Herriman and MacDonald of last year's combination, Acton, Prince and Rawlings will also make a strong bid for one of the positions in the Blue hitting outfielder, who has represented Central in base ball competitions for the last two years, is not in school at present, but it is rumored he will enter school in time to be eligible for the base ball series in the spring. If he falls to return the Centralites will be compelled to develop an entire new outfield, as Richardson and Rheem left school last year through graduation.

Menefee and Gray, two crack high school players in the series last spring, are employed by the American Security and Trust Company. This does not offset the rumor that these two boys are not attending Georgetown University, as they are taking a night course in law. Both boys will represent the Bankers in the Bank League next summer.

He would not state the possible candidates, but said the team would be picked from the best available material in the school. In all probability the five will be composed of the following men: Parker, Donn, Fitz- tioned at the fort. The kick-off will be hugh, Defandorf and Babcock.
